

Native artists on screen in Poultney

Tiny Threatre premieres two new films at weekend festival

POULTNEY, Vt - Last week, The Tiny Theatre in Poultney premiered two New England movies in a weekend film festival.

Joshua Ferguson, originally from Fair Haven, and Ken Holmes of Poultney attended one another's screenings on Friday and Saturday evening.

Taking a leading role as Jason (Joshua Ferguson), a writer with an emotional angst, Ferguson starred in The Girl With the Tear in her Eye produced by Boat Productions. The story follows the life of Tina (Chelsea Ortuno) through the development of her borderline personality patterns, and the murdering of her boyfriends as a result.

On Saturday evening, Ken Holmes appeared in the movie Justice Is Mind in a supporting role. The film portrays the story of a man's memory revealed through a futuristic medical procedure.

Their works, including upcoming movies, will appear in local media and the Lakeside News.

Ken Holmes, left, and Joshua Ferguson, right, pointing at the marquis of the Tiny Theatre which is displaying their recent films.

"Where The Cus

We dont make

You just forgot what

Monday -Friday 6-2 p
Thers
25 Main Street

HERM
BO

Used & Ra
We carry
Tuesda

95 Main Street
Poultney, VT 05

Castleton author Pam Rehlen to speak on new book

CASTLETON, Vt - Local author, Pam Rehlen, will talk about her most recent book at the Higley House Museum, Main Street, Castleton Village on Thursday, November 7th at 6 PM. "The Vanished Landmarks Game, Vermont Stories from West of Birdseye" features changes in Castleton over the years, Gibbs' family vignettes, long-gone local colorful characters, and other Castleton lore. Free and open to the public, the program is handicapped accessible. Refreshments will be served. Questions? Call Holly Hitchcock at 802.468.5105.

FISH
TA

Benson Village School News